Al Packard on Pike Hill has sold his farm to a Mr. Abbott of Upton and has bought the James Bennett farm of J. A. Bolster.

B. H. Young formerly of this town is located in Lincoln, Neb., and sells musical instruments under the firm name of Young & Elder.

The steamer Pennesseewassee leaves Cole's wharf every week day evening at 6:15, p. m., for the Islands and cottages. It also makes a morning trip, returning to town before 7 o'clock. On Sundays the boat leaves at 10, a. m., and 12, m. Round trip, 25 cents.

The Board of Health are agitating the matter of calling a village corporation meeting for the purpose of determining what action shall be taken toward draining the land within the village limits on the Pennesseewassee brook, the lake outlet.

"What a beautiful bouquet of roses!" was the exclamation we frequently heard Friday afternoon. We had on our desk a large bouquet of the varities of roses from the garden of Mrs. Esther Reed. Her yard has many admirers during the season that roses bloom.

The special town meeting last Saturday was well attended. Capt. W. W. Whitmarsh was chosen moderator. Civil Engineer S. A. Stevens showed a plan or draft for raising the bridge, and it was voted to raise the bridge to such a hight as to accommodate the steamers now on the lake. Chas. S. Cummings, Charles Partridge and Charles L. Hathaway were appointed a committee to see to raising the bridge. The meeting authorized the town treasurer to give a town note not to exceed $400 for one year if the funds were needed to meet the expenses of the bridge. The estimated cost of raising the bridge 5 feet is between $250 and $300.

Have you been into Howe & Ridlon's store recently? If not you will be a little surprised to see the changes made there. We called there the other day and expressed surprise as to the improvements and changes in the store, and Mr. Ridlon told us that the changes were made some months ago. We feel that we have been remiss in our duty as local reporter that we had not noticed the improvements before. As alike has been fitted up in the rear of the store with a window put in and every nook of the goods changed about so as to make the store more convenient. This store is one of the oldest, if not the oldest in town. Up stairs is the carpet department and they keep a good line of staple goods. It is here that you find feathers of all kinds. The business of the firm has more than trebled since Mr. Ridlon became a member of the firm. Mr. H. has two clerks in the store and they have a large and increasing trade.

Edith M. Stearns and Nellie M. Andrews are at Old Orchard.

Holmes' notes can be had at this office. We will send them to any address on receipt of 10 cents.

Have you taken a ride on the new boat? If not you should avail yourself of the first opportunity.

Arrangements for the Annual Lake Carnival are being made. The date has not yet been settled upon. The festivities will exceed anything ever before attempted.

Our popular clothier of the Blue store, T. L. Webb and family are taking a week's vacation at Judge Whitman's cottage at Cape Dinsmore this week. Webb reports the bass fishing to be excellent.

W. E. Brooks of Oxford was in town Wednesday and he got the lines or reins mixed in some unaccountable manner and was split out of the carriage. The horse was frightened and ran smashing the wagon to a considerable extent.

On July 24 the ladies of the Baptist circle will be entertained by Mrs. Faunce at Pine Lodge. The circle would like all to go that can as a fine time is anticipated. Arrangements have been made with Mr. Ames to carry all who wish to go on the return trip will take them up lake.

We want you to become a subscriber to the ADVERTISER. We shall not bore you with politics, but will give you all the local news regardless of who may be elected to the offices. All local political news of any one of the parties will be reported, but no sides will be taken in the coming campaign. A new serial story is soon to commence.

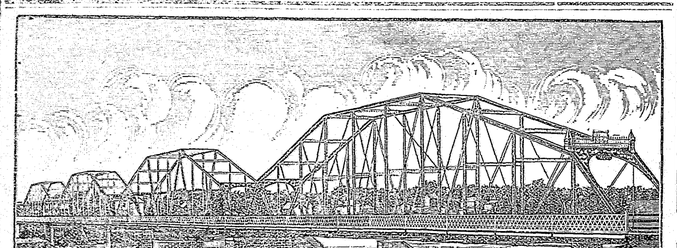
G.; Mrs. Lucy Wheeler, V. G.; and Mrs. Frank Tuck, Sec. The lodge will visit West Paris Lodge next Tuesday evening.



Architect's Design for a New Iron Bridge and Trestle Work to take the place of the Crockett Bridge across the Outlet of Lake Pennesseewassee. Estimated Cost, $2,000.00.

NOTE.—The south approach to bridge will be level with the road leading to Norway Lake, and the iron trestle work and bridge will extend by an easy incline from that road to the top of Freeman's hill. This will make the bridge over the natural channel on the Freeman side 84 feet above high water, and will, undoubtedly, be sufficiently high to accommodate lake navigation for many years to come. Only a portion of the bridge is shown by the above design.

Died in the hospital at Cambridge, Mass., July 9th, Mrs. Mahala Beford, aged 59 years, 9 months and 22 days. Her remains were brought to her sister's, Mrs. D. K. Hill's, of this village, Friday of last week and carried to Paris Saturday for burial.

We have an advertising pamphlet before us that has given us a heap of trouble. It has laid on our desk or in some convenient pigeon hole adjoining for four or five months. Several times have we caught it up to throw it into the waste basket but somehow just before we let it drop our attention would be attracted to the fine pictures it contained and we would lay it one side for a more convenient season when we might have time to read the printing and look at the pictures and become acquainted with the sights on coffee plantations and tea farms and to see how aptly and prettily Chase & Sanborn of Boston could tell of the unsurpassed merit of the different brands of their teas and coffees. This little book is too pretty to throw away and it is ever reappearing to attract our attention and to disturb us. An importing house or any other firm that sends out such an attractive picture book ought to pay a license for the privilege of so doing as it is an unutterable nuisance of the first degree. A. C. Green & Co. is the local firm that sent us this 50 pages of fine-de-troyng pictures and we notice that they recommend and sell the Chase & Sanborn famous teas and coffees.

Grand Commander F. I. Day of Lewiston installed the officers elect of Norway Commandery No. 21? United Order of the Golden Cross: The following are the officers for the current term: E. N. C., Geo. A. Cleaves; N. C., Newell A. Trafton; V. C., Roxie McArdle; P., Etta Cleaves; K. of R., Lucella Cummings; F. K. of R., Nancy A. McCrellis; H., Carrie Ames; I. G., Albert C. McCrellis; O. G., Albert F. Andrews. The ceremony was witnessed by a number of visitors from this village and South Paris. The literary exercises were omitted as several who were on the program being unable to take part in the exercises it was thought best to omit the whole. Very interesting speeches were made by Messrs. Day of Lewiston, Estey of Cumberland Mills and Davis of South Paris. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served to all present. This is what the Lewiston Journal says of Rev. Miss Angell:—"I was up in Norway the other evening," says Supreme Commander F. I. Day of Lewiston, "and was installing the officers of a Golden Cross Commandery there. The work, of course, includes the prayer by the prelate, and as usual with the customary introduction, I called for the prelate to do his duty. Imagine my surprise to see a lady arise, and with hands folded and in a calm, sweet voice begin the prayer. I have heard many, but none more appropriate. I have heard many appropriate things spoiled in delivery. This was not. It was given with so true a touch of feeling, so beautiful an intonation that I was quite astonished and overcome. I hardly expected anything of the sort and was greatly surprised until I learned that it was a prelate indeed—the Universalist preacher of Norway. You have heard of her and know her eloquence. After that a special solemnity seemed to pervade the meeting and I myself took extra care that I did the work the best I knew how."

The officers of Aurora Encampment, No. 23, were installed Monday night by District Deputy T. L. Webb, assisted by J. W. Cronmett as Grand Junior Warden and S. M. King as Grand High Priest: Eben H. Marshall, C. P.; Wallace K. Clifford, S. W.; Frank E. Buck, J. W.; Frank P. Kimball, Scribe; Alonzo Shurtleft, Treas.

The officers of the Methodist circle are Mrs. Will Jordan, Pres.; Naomi Stevens, Vice Pres.; Mrs. Whitefield Stuart, Sec. and Treas.

Sanford Fogg, A. B., principal of Island Pond High School is in town.

MIDDLE INTERVALE.—In the items from Shelburne, N. H., a mistake in names—Roll of Honor. Louva L. Plympton was one of the scholars.

Ladies' Aid met Thursday, July 17th, with Mrs. Wm. Reed.

A steer belonging to Dea. L. P. Holt was found dead in the pasture a few days ago.

Fannie E. Wheeler, whose home for more than a year has been with the writer, is visiting her relatives on Grover Hill.

Lizzie Grover closed a pleasant term of school here with interesting exercises the last day.

Mrs. E. L. Wilber, who has been a guest at the Maple House, has gone to the seashore.

S. S. Stanley at this writing is failing fast.

The Ladies Club Reception.

Mrs. Herrick and Mrs. Skillings gave the reception for the Ladies Club on Wednesday evening at Ideal Hall and it is hardly necessary to add that the affair was distinguished by the eclat which characterizes everything with which these ladies have any connection. Social ethics seem to have been made a subject of careful and most successful study by them, and the application of their theories to the art of entertaining leaves nothing to be desired.

The idea of a hall reception was happily conceived. It possesses many advantages over such accommodations as many of our private houses can offer for occasions of this sort, and is more comfortable and enjoyable both for guests and entertainers.

Our Universalist society has held its church sociables at this hall and certainly some part of the success of those pleasant entertainments was due to that fact.

The hall was tastefully furnished from the resources of these ladies' houses, and though not as elaborate in its appointments as a White House reception room, still the effect of the furnishings combined with the pretty toilettes made a toute ensemble that was charming.

The reception was very fully attended, a large representation of the Mayville ladies being present and they contributed in no small degree to the brilliancy of the gathering, supplementing most gracefully and kindly the efforts of the ladies receiving to make the evening delightful to all present. Thanks are especially due to Mr. Alford M. True for his assistance in arranging and decorating the hall. As usually happens on occasions of this kind his talents were instantly and cheerfully placed at the disposal of the ladies and he naturally made himself invaluable to them and they are keenly appreciative of his services.

A little sketch in pantomime was presented near the close of the evening and very well rendered, otherwise the hours glided away in an easy flow of conversation. Fruits and ices tempered the heat and a perfect gem of a tea table and service, presided over by the Misses Twitchell from Mayville, dispensed a delicious hyson to every beverage. So everyone went away in good humor and with a delightful sense of having been well entertained. (How easily this feeling is acquired when each is prepared to contribute as well as receive some pleasant thought or idea.)

To the hostesses we present our compliments and most hearty congratulations. They are helping most effectively in an excellent cause and their efforts on this occasion are fully appreciated and commended by their guests. Better management of the affair would have been impossible. We need to come together in this way oftener. The influences and suggestions are refining and elevating and we are simply taking advantage of the good things that the Gods have designed for us, if we will have them.

It is the Epicurean idea of "Jam vivimus, vivamus" but stripped of its grossness and applied to the making the most of the rational and legitimate means of enjoyment at our disposal. The practice is conducive to mental and bodily soundness and we pay the penalty if we forego it. The idea is elsewhere beautifully expressed. Pardon me if I quote it.

"He who hath stopped at the table of thanks,
And yet starved in the sight of luxurious things,
Who hath watched the wine flow by himself
but half tasted,
Heard the music and yet missed the tune, who hath wasted
One part of life's grand possibilities, friend,
That man will bear with him be sure to the end,
A blighted experience, a rancour within.
You may call it a virtue, I call it a sin."

BUCKFIELD.

Farmers are rushing their haying as fast as possible. Help is very scarce. A good crop of hay this year is the verdict and the hay crop is the most important of any to the farmer. Other crops are doing well but very late. If the frost holds off till late other crops may be very fair.

Mrs. Phinney and daughter returned to Waltham last Tuesday.

C. Dumas and wife have moved to Massachusetts.

Mrs. H. F. Vose's two daughters, Nellie and Ida, have returned, one to Auburn and the other to Lynn, Mass. Mrs. Vose met with quite an accident the other day. She made a misstep and fell backwards down stairs into the cellar hurting her quite badly but no bones were broken and she is getting over it nicely.

C. D. Bradbury, jr., and wife have arrived in town to stop a few weeks. We are always glad to see them.

The idea of a hall reception was happily conceived. It possesses many advantages over such accommodations as many of our private houses can offer for occasions of this sort, and is more comfortable and enjoyable both for guests and entertainers.

Report says a gentleman came to town last Monday to see if there was any inducement here in favor of having a shoe factory in our village. We wish they would come and go to manufacturing shoes and some one else come and build a hotel. It would be a good send off for this town.

A number of our young people are talking of going to work in the mill at Sanford.

Years ago there was a man hung in effigy at Cornish and on his back was pinned a piece of poetry. We had the pleasure of seeing and reading the original manuscript recently.

James E. Chapman and wife are spending a few days amongst the mountains.

Among the young Americans of this place, fishing seems to be their great enjoyment. Good fishing on both sides of the river.

Saturday July 12, about 9 a. m. nine of our young men with a few of their friends left this place; not a smile was visible, nor a cheerful word spoken, but you could read from the expression on their faces the words, "If we lose to-day our opponents will have to play ball" Old men who witnessed their departure shook these heads and said, "poor, foolish boys," "Hope they will learn a lesson to-day" On their arrival at Cornish station on showing the station agent a letter from the manager of the M. C. R. R., they were furnished tickets to Glen station and return. On the train ancient history was a more pleasing subject than base ball. At Cornish our party was joined by Ed. Brackett, Ira Garland and Thomas Mason at Brownfield by Seldon Boynton and Frank Ham. On arriving at Glen station we were met by one of Gen. M. C. Wentworth's finest four horse coaches and invited to ride to Wentworth Hall. We were met at the hall by the Gen. and a crowd of pleasant young men who cheered us heartily. At 1 p. m. we were escorted by the Gen. to the dining hall where a table was set for 12 and the bill of fare was the best that the land affords. I think if a view of the future had been opened to us the gastric juice would have flown more freely and the handsome young ladies who were dressed for the occasion would have had to take more steps and less time to view the green country style of our using the cutlery and the blushes that would cover the faces of the young men as they saw the damsels watching them. But dinner is finished and we are on the ground and facing us are the young men as Rounds and Richardson for a battery. Did they have men from the N. Y. brotherhood? There were such names as Slatery, Crane, etc. The question was "can we get one run?" The answer was "doubtful." The game begins, silence is supreme, except now and then a cheer for a good play made by one of the 18 men. The coachers do their work in a low tone of voice, the players pay attention to business. The Hall boys are having medicine dealt out to them and they are taking it; they know it is not pleasant, we know it, but it is the most palitable we have with us, we have taken the same drugs before now, perhaps it was not so much of a surprise to us as it was to them but it is a sure cure. Toward the close of the 8th inning, Gen. W. notifies us we must close in order to catch the train. At the close of the inning our boys are called into line and ordered to give three cheers for Gen W. and they were given with a will. The following is the score:

The Sons of Veterans met and organized a camp Saturday evening, with 21 members. The name of the camp is Henry O. Eaton. They elected the following officers: Capt, Henry M. Colby, 1st Lieut. C. P. Eaton, 2nd Lieut. E. E. Bennett, T. I. Goddard, Sgt., F. H. Goddard, Guard.

The gale did some damage here, uprooting trees, blowing hay into the river, upsetting some outbuildings, etc. A woman was coming down the street when the gale struck and she ran for the church and braced herself against the building. The vane was blown from the spire and dropped at her feet but the rest of the church stood.

A Deadly Danger

Lurks about the sink when connected with a cesspool without a trap. In large places that have sanitary regulations it is a crime to set a sink without being properly trapped. The expense is trifling compared to the risk you run without it.

I keep the Star Traps constantly on hand and will put them in upon short notice. This is the trap used in all large cities and is perfectly safe.

OXFORD.

Remember the K. of P. excursion to Portland and the Island Saturday, July 26. See posters.

Joseph Frye of Oxford was arrested Tuesday by Deputy Sheriff Bassett, on a complaint and warrant charging him with burning the store and grist mill at Oxford village, known as the Clarke & Whitney mill, Monday night, to obtain the insurance. Six companies had risks on the mill. Wm. J. Wheeler, agent of three of the companies, made the complaint. Frye was arraigned before the judge of the municipal court at Norway and pleaded not guilty. The trial was set down for Thursday, and bail was fixed at $900, which the respondent not obtaining, he was taken to jail at Paris Hill. Loss, about $3,000; insured for $2,500. Thursday noon Frye made a full confession of setting the fire and how it was done, consequently there was no trial.

Rev. Geo. R. Searle pastor of the Cong'l church has returned from his vacation.

The woolen mill is not running this week. Many of the male employees are haying for the Robinson M'fg. Co.

A close and exciting game of base-ball is expected on the fair grounds next Saturday afternoon the 19th between the Presumpscots of Cumberland Mills and the Oxfords. The G. T. R. will sell tickets for single fare for the round trip from stations in Maine to South Paris and return for the event, and a passenger car will be attached to a train leaving So. Paris at 7 p. m. to carry passengers to Portland and way stations.

M. F. King, ex-mayor of Portland, is in town stopping with George Hawkes, esq.

Prof. Small of the Bethel Academy is in town stopping at the Chadbourne House.

J. K. Chase has just got up a life size crayon of the late Charles Holbrook of Portland, which his relatives say is a perfect likeness. A well known Portland artist pronounces it as fine a job of crayon work as was ever carried into Portland.

James B. Lamb, now of Portland, is at his father's where his wife is quite sick.

Elmer V. Walker has raised a few of a new variety of strawberries which are remarkably large—big as small hen's eggs.

There has been a number of burglar alarms recently, but no houses have been broken into.

There are four shows booked for this poor village this week.

Charles Littlewood is now rapidly improving, having had no bleeding spells for over a week.

The woolen factory has shut down again for one week. Quite a number have worked their notice and left.

J. K. Chase has just finished a half life size crayon in India Ink of the late Mrs. Bryant, which her children say is a remarkable good likeness.

Will Lombard and a party of friends have gone up Sunday river fishing.

The list of property advertised for unpaid taxes is a very long one.

WEST SUMNER.

E. W. Chandler has been finishing some chambers for G. H. Barrows.

The wife and little daughter of Edwin Field of Watertown, Mass., are visiting at Mr. Field's sister's, Mrs. E. G. Dolly.

Angie S. Crockett came to her brother's Charles Crockett's last week for a vacation.

Allie Lawrence came from Bethel one day last week on his bicycle to see his grandfather, Samuel Field, and his aunt, Mrs. F. B. Barrett.

Charley Newell has helped Wm. J. Bonney some about his haying.

Mrs. Wm. Cronmett and Georgie M. Packard, of Norway, visited last week at W. Ryerson's.

Wm. Churchill has been in town a few days.

John E. Berry has purchased a new Buckeye mowing machine this season. Henry Proctor works for him in haying.

Henry C. Buck, a native of this place, but for many years a resident of Wisconsin, with his son is visiting relatives at the hotel.

July 10th at H. O. Tuell was coming from West Paris with a load of meal, on coming down a hill, he found he was slipping from the wagon, and sprang to one side, and cleared himself all but his right arm, the hind wheel passing over that below the elbow breaking the small bone, and making an ugly sore on the back of the hand. The doctor being away sometime elapsed before the bone was set and the wound dressed. Both are now doing well. Mr. Tuell feels very grateful that it was no worse. The horse which is E. A. Harlow's showed an intelligence almost human; by stopping after going a short distance and looking around at Mr. T. until he came up with him. His son, E. L. Tuell and his wife, of Norway, came to see him last Sunday.

During the heavy shower of the 8 inst. the house of Zephaniah Starbird was struck by lightning injuring one end considerably, it then passed the shed, setting fire which fortunately was soon extinguished. Mrs. Starbird was made unconscious for a short time.

G. E. Pulsifer and D. G. Noble came in from a canvassing trip last Saturday.

Flora Davenport of Whitman, Mass., is visiting her grandfather, C. W. Bates.

Minnie Bisbee has returned from Old Orchard.

L. L. Gardiner is no better.

Mrs. J. R. Pulsifer is no better. Her daughter is still with her. Her son has been quite sick since our last writing.

MASON.

J. H. Bean and mother went to Newry to visit uncle Charles Wight's family. Mr. Bean has a present affliction of a severe boil on his back which is laying him up.

Millie and Blanche Mason of Berlin, N. H., are visiting at their grandfather's, J. C. Bean's.

Mrs. Flora Morrill had a tip-over while driving their young horse a few days ago. The wagon was quite badly demolished, but she escaped without being hurt.

Joseph Tyler made a short stop at Yarmouth haying. He dropped a stitch in his back and had to come home and have it taken up.

H. G. Mason and son, and Lyman Abbott have cut Addison Bean's grass and put it in the barn in about three days, some 15 tons.

Rev. Mr. Witham has bought the grass belonging to Rev. Mr. Bean by his mill and on the intervale.

Mrs. Sarah Tyler has the circle this week.

Charles Brown with his horses has been haying for Byron Shaw of West Bethel.

The cyclone Tuesday night last week was quite severe, yet did no damage besides blowing down fences, some trees and tearing out some grafts from apple trees.

A. S. Bean's teams are now drawing spool strips. Some of his two horse teams are haying.

F. I. Bean is making quite an extensive hen yard of wire fence to keep Sir Reynard from the flock.

LOCKE'S MILLS.

Hiram Day, of North Woodstock, died at the residence of his son, Geo. Day, on Thursday of last week, aged nearly 76 years. The funeral, which occurred Saturday, was attended by Rev. L. E. Pease, of Bryant's Pond. Mrs. Mercy Hall, of Boston, who came on to attend the funeral of her father, is stopping for a day or two at Geo. Day's.

Lute Dorrance, of Boston, Mass., stopped over Sunday at Dudley Cottage.

Wesley Emerson has been to New York.

Almon Emerson has corn two feet high and potatoes in blossom.

OBITUARY

Otis F. Trafton, the well-known cattle dealer, died at his residence in South Harrison, July 1st, after an illness of about four weeks. He was the son of Joshua Trafton, and was born in Harrison, Dec. 20, 1807. He married Eliza A. Wilkins of Waterford, and settled on the place where he died. He began the business of dealing in live stock early in life, and for a long time did a very extensive business. He continued in the business down to the present year, but his business for a few years has not been as extensive as formerly owing to his failing health. He had been in poor health for several years, but has pluckily kept about, and did a good amount of business. He was a good citizen, and a man that was generally respected. He leaves a widow and five children—Henry O., Melrose, Mass., John E., who lives near Cumberland Mills, Abby M., who married Geo. W. Newcomb and lives at Bridgton, Frank M., in Harrison, near the home farm, and James A., at Cumberland Mills. In addition to his business in stock, Mr. T. carried on a large farm, which is now under good cultivation, and is one of the best in Harrison. The funeral services were held at

There is no question at all but that if one advertises in the newspapers an article which the people want, and offers it at a fair price, he can sell it. Yet to be profitable, advertising must be constant; it must, like Tennyson's brook, "go on forever." Advertising in 1887 will not answer for 1888; nor will January advertising do for August.

Judge Not.

We judge too oft by what we see and hear,
By outward guises, by light and careless talk,
And by the paths of life in which men walk.
By merry laugh and swiftly dropping tear.
We are not fit to judge by what we see;
We cannot know how much there lies behind
The smile or tear or deed that seems unkind;
Oh let us then be full of charity!
For He who wisely judges, who doth hold
The Book of Life's just record in his hands,
Will judge—oh, not by houses, horses, bands,
Bank-stock and silver, diamonds and gold,
But by pure deeds and efforts noble, true,
Not by what vain and frailties now are we,
But what we earnestly aspired to be;
Not what we did, but what we strove to do.
Think you, that written down within that Book
What deeds of love against your name would be,
What acts unselfish you to-day would see
If you were granted on its page to look?
Perhaps that they, whom you have now condemned,
Will fill a fairer page than is your own
When the full records of your lives are known.
When earthly life, for you at last doth end.
Lest that thou sometime shall condemned be,
Of others whom thou know not, judge not thou!
Your increment as ye judge will come not now,
But will thereafter in Eternity.

Advise to a Friend.

BY S. FRANKLIN MCARTHUR.

This life is but a field of strife,
Where battles, they are lost and won,
They're ended ever a transient life
Until we reach the bright beyond.
We buckle on our sword and shield,
And march afar o'er deserts drear,
With steadfast hearts to win the field,
And gain the crown dear to us dear.
For they obstruct our onward course
By barriers placed on every side,
Yet we our way through life must force
Our hearts by victory glorified.
Oft strangled on some rock-bound isle
Our sails of vigor wet with spray,
No loving face on us to smile,
But lonely we must wend our way.
Dashing through the waves of the tossing sea,
Our eyes fixed on the bright beyond,
Endeavoring to reach that heavenly lea,
Where loving friends before have gone.
The devastating power of strife
Upon our nature weak gives vent,
Endeavoring to crush this worm of life
By the power of its element.
Lone wanderer on this earthly plain,
Dwell not in realms of grief;
The battle fight, the victory gain,
And walk in paths of sweet relief.
Do not let the billows roll,
With their crested waves of white,
And sink engulf your mortal soul,
But like a battle proudly fight.
Do not recline in some shady glen
Pondering on some object all day,
Nor try with untaught hand and pen
To keep the wolf of poverty away.
It is not with your tongue to speak
Let by the life or of your hand,
You should endeavor for to seek
Providence in your native land.
Your arm of sinew was not given,
Or heart of courage for to stand,
And like a coward turn driven
Down to miseries' lowest strand.
He who placed you here on earth
And gave you implements of toil,—
He can not smile upon the birth
Of one who will not till life's soil.
Cast in your sickle stern and brave,
And gather in the ripened grain;
And God from mercy will save
Those who strive a livelihood to gain.
Gird on your armor, sword and shield,
And assert through life with a steadfast tread,
Or lay in death on life's battle field
Where nature has her emerald curtain spread.

A FAIRY TALE.

Once upon a time there was a brave soldier named John. After passing eight years in the army, according to the requirements of the law, he re-enlisted for eight years, and then for eight years more. At the end of these twenty-four years he was discharged, and he left his regiment, carrying with him a pound of bread and six pennies, all the property that he possessed in the world.

"Yes," he said to himself as he walked along the highway; a pound of bread and six pennies, that is what I have gained by serving the king twenty-four years. But, I can do better hands! What is the use in finding fault? I shall only work myself into a passion."

A little further on a poor old beggar man stopped him and asked for charity.

"What can I give you?" replied John. "I, who have served the king twenty-four years and have gained only a pound of bread and six pennies."

But the beggar insisted, and the charitable John took his knife and cut the bread in two pieces and divided it and his pennies with the old man.

The beggar eat his half of the loaf greedily, and when he had finished he said:

"Since you possess a generous heart and have shared with me all that you have in the world, I will grant you one wish. What do you desire?

"My bag here is empty," replied John. "I desire that to be able to make anything enter it that I choose."

"So be it," said the old man, and he disappeared.

A short time afterward, as John was passing through a town, he saw in a shop a loaf of bread as white as snow and an appetizing sausage.

"Into my bag!" he cried.

Immediately the bread rolled towards him like a cartwheel, and the sausage glided along like a snake.

The owner of the shop and his son ran after the man who had carried off their property in this strange fashion; but John, having a ferocious appetite, had already devoured all that which had so promptly entered the bag.

When evening came he reached a city where he meant to pass the night, and, meeting a man, he asked where he could find a lodging place.

"I am only a poor soldier," he said; "I have served the king for twenty-four years, and I have gained only a pound of bread and six pennies."

"I can lodge you," replied the man whom he had addressed, "in a beautiful house, where no one dares to enter, because it is haunted by a frightful ghost. If you are not afraid, you can be very comfortable there. You will find an excellent supper all prepared, for this man, who returns every night to his former dwelling, was very rich."

"That is good," cried John, "I desire nothing better than such a longing. I am not afraid. The house pleases me."

And he entered the abandoned building, and to his joy he found the cellar well stocked with choice wines and the dining table spread with an abundant feast.

To fortify himself against any nocturnal apparitions, after lighting a candle, he eat a hearty supper and drank freely of the wine.

As he was thus agreeably occupied, he heard a voice calling down the chimney:

"Shall I tumble down?"

"Tumble down if you wish to," replied John, a little excited by the wine that he had taken. "A soldier who has served the king for twenty-four years to gain a pound of bread and six pennies has nothing to fear."

At the same instant he saw the leg of a man fall upon the floor.

"Do you want to be buried?" asked the soldier, emptying another glass of wine.

With one of its toes the leg made a negative sign.

Again the voice cried from the chimney:

"Shall I tumble down?"

"Tumble, if you wish to," replied John. "A soldier who has served the king for twenty-four years fears nothing."

Then he saw come tumbling down the chimney a second leg, then the trunk and arms, and finally a head which adjusted itself upon these members, which joined each other, and a man appeared standing before him. "John," said a voice, which could not be heard without a feeling of terror, "I see that you are brave."

"That is true," replied John. "I fear nothing. Why, what can one fear who has served the king twenty-four years for a pound of bread and six pennies?"

"Do not trouble yourself about your poverty. If you will do what I desire, to save my soul, you shall be rich. Will you do it?"

"Certainly. I am ready to tie your limbs together so that they cannot separate, if you wish."

"Unfortunately, it seems to me that you have taken too much wine."

"Oh, no. I assure you I am all right," replied the soldier.

"Well, then, follow me."

John rose and took the candle. But the ghost extended its arm and extinguished it. There was no need of it, for the two eyes of the supernatural being shone like two burning coals.

It led John to the cellar and there said to him:

"Take this spade and dig up the earth at that spot."

"Dig yourself, if you wish," replied John. "I served the king twenty-four years to gain a pound of bread and six pennies. I have no desire to serve another master, who will, perhaps, not give me even that."

The specter took the shovel, dug the earth and drew out successively three heavy jars.

"Here is a jar filled with pieces of copper coin," it said to John. "You will distribute those to the poor. This one, filled with silver, you will expend in masses for my soul. The third, filled with gold, shall be yours if you promise me to faithfully make use of the two others as I have told you to."

"You need have no fears," replied John. "To gain a pound of bread and six pennies I served the king faithfully for twenty-four years; and, for the recompense you offer me, shall I not respect your wishes?"

With a sigh of relief the specter disappeared. John scrupulously carried out the wishes of his ghostly visitor, and, with the sum given to him, he bought a large estate.

But the evil one was enraged at seeing this soul, which he had believed was his own, saved by the prayers of the poor and of the church, and he determined to revenge himself upon John.

A little imp, very shrewd and very cunning, promised to bring the guilty one to him, and one morning he started out and found the soldier sitting tranquilly in his garden.

"Good morning, soldier John," he said.

"Good morning, my little man. You are very plain, upon my word. It really makes me laugh to look at you. Will you smoke?"

"No I do not smoke."

"Have a glass of wine then."

"No, I do not drink."

"What have you come here for, then?"

"To take you away with me."

"All right, I will make no objection to that. I have not served for four and twenty years to retreat before an enemy as small as you are. John, the soldier, fear nothing. But for the long journey on which you propose to take me, I must purchase some provisions. While I go to seek them amuse yourself by climbing up into that apple tree and picking some of the beautiful fruit."

The imp, who was a little gourmand, hastened to profit by this invitation. John presently returned holding in his hand his instrument of safety, and cried:

"Into my bag!"

Howling and making frightful contortions, the little imp was forced to enter the terrible bag.

John took an iron bar and began pounding the captive, and did not leave off until he had broken every bone in his body. Then he let him go.

The evil one was in a frightful rage when he saw the condition of his favorite.

"By the horns of the moon," he cried, "this proud soldier shall pay for all this. I will go and get him myself."

John, who expected this visit, stood at the door of his house with his bag in his hand, and as soon as he saw the evil one appear he said quietly to him;

"You know that I fear nothing."

"We will see about that," replied the evil one, advancing toward him with great flames flashing from his eyes.

"Into the bag!" cried John.

The evil one vainly attempted to escape. He fought and struggled. It was of no use. Into the bag he had to go. John took a heavy hammer and struck him with all his force, and kept beating until his captive was as thin as a sheet of paper.

When he was worn out by fatigue he said:

"There, that will do for today; but recollect, if you ever dare to return, as surely as I served the king for twenty-four years for

TRADE MARK.

A Fact

WORTH knowing is that blood diseases which all other remedies fail to cure, yield to Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Proof confirmation of this statement comes to hand daily. Even such deep-seated and stubborn complaints as Rheumatism, Rheumatic Gout, and the like, are thoroughly eradicated by the use of this wonderful alterative

Mrs. R. Irving Dodge, 110 West 126th street, New York, certifies:—

"About two years ago, after suffering for nearly two years from rheumatic gout, being able to walk only with great discomfort, and having tried various remedies, including mineral waters, without relief, I saw by an advertisement in a Chicago paper that a man had been relieved of this distressing complaint, after long suffering, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I then decided to make a trial of this medicine, and took it regularly for eight months. I am pleased to say that it effected a complete cure, and that I have since had no return of the disease."

Mrs. L. A. Stark, Nashua, N. H., writes: "One year ago I was taken ill with rheumatism, being confined to my house six months. I came out of the sickness very much debilitated, with no appetite, and my system disordered in every way. I commenced to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and began to improve at once, gaining in strength and soon recovering my usual health. I cannot say too much in praise of this well-known medicine."

"I have taken a great deal of medicine, but nothing has done me so much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I felt its beneficial effects before I had quite finished one bottle, and I can freely testify that it is the best blood-medicine I know of."—L. W. Ward, Sr., Woodland, Texas.

Early Reminiscenses of Greenwood.

No 2.

The first and only church organized in this town was of the Methodist order. At what date we are unable to say but not many years after its settlement. The first house of worship was built somewhere near 1820 or '25. The interests of this church and most of the public meetings were presided over by Revs. Wm. Yates before mentioned as the first settler and Edward Whittle. These two men though unlike in almost every point ever worked together like brothers, though Father Whittle as he was familiarly called was allowed to take the lead in all affairs pertaining to church discipline and in fact all other matters, as he was one very unwilling to submit to dictation.

Father Whittle was born in the State of Virginia. We know but little of his early life except that his father was not only a slave owner but master of a vessel engaged in the African slave trade.

Edward seems to have inherited a most inveterate hatred of the whole institution, which he plainly manifested on every favorable occasion openly and boldly, declaring that the curse of Almighty God must sooner or later fall upon all connected with the infernal institution. It was during one of the voyages to the coasts of the dark continent that his father with his vessel and all on board were lost in the ocean. Edward, though but a boy in years, declared this a mishap to be but a visitation of God, and the death of his father a just retribution which his nefarious conduct justly merited.

Soon after the mother moved to Charlestown, S. C. What few slaves they owned were given their freedom, after which young Edward was apprenticed to the trade of painter. But being of a sanguine temperament and given to strong likes and dislikes, he became so disgusted at the barbarities and cruelties he was daily obliged to witness, that as soon as he had obtained his majority he fled from his home, declaring that he would get as far from the infernal institutions as he could possibly do and remain under the stars and stripes which he dearly loved. Accordingly he came to Portland, Me., where he remained for a time working at his trade of a house painter.

From there he came to Greenwood where he remained to the day of his death which occurred during the year 1862 at the advanced age of ninety-five years. Though deprived of his eyesight for several years previous to his death, his mind was clear, and he ever manifested a deep interest in both religious and political affairs.

At the outbreaking of the Rebellion, he declared it to be the death knell of slavery for which for many years he had waited and prayed, often expressing his regrets that age and infirmities precluded his taking a part in the great struggle, which is sooner or later must make this country free indeed.

Perhaps one or two of his stories portraying the abuses and horrors of slavery may not come amiss, though almost incredible to relate.

A certain planter, said he, who lived some half a mile from my father's home, had a slave girl who was kept as housemaid, doing most of the housework and drudgery for the family. She was nearly white and very fine looking for a nigger, as all are called niggers provided they are born of a slave mother.

One day the slave girl was engaged in working and placed her child upon the floor to amuse himself with a few toys. Soon her mistress came in and placed her child of about the same age beside the slave baby. The strongly marked resemblence between the two might have been taken as positive proof of the relationship existing. While removing some clothes from a kettle hanging over the wood fire the slave girl chanced to spatter a few drops of hot suds upon her mistress' baby. The mistress who possessed a most violent and ungovernable temper bounded into the room and seizing the slave child by an arm and leg threw it into the boiling kettle. Though this barbarous and inhuman act created quite a sensation for a time, it soon blew over and was forgotten by the larger portion of the people.

In Charleston there lived a man of leisure, a miserable drunken fellow who spent most of his time in gambling and horse racing. He had a slave girl recently purchased at an auction in Baltimore. This girl was considered quite a prize as she had formerly resided in one of the wrest aristocratic and wealthy families of that city, who had by some reverse of fortune come to grief. The girl was at once installed as cook and for a time all went well.

One day the master came home morose and sullen. He had evidently been drinking heavily and furthermore had lost heavily at the gaming table. Sitting down to dinner, he like Shakespeare's hero who tamed the shrew, began to swear and brawl declaring there was nothing on the table fit to eat.

The poor cook in trembling tones ventured some excuse for her fancied shortcomings, when the infuriated master at once seized her by her long curls and dragging her out of doors and to the wood pile, deliberately seized a broad ax and severed her head off. He then went to the pump and after washing his hands returned to the house and finished his dinner as though nothing had happened.

The minions of the law of course must make some show of noticing so foul and bloody a murder, so accordingly this heartless wretch was apprehended and held to answer for murder. When the court convened at which his trial was to be held the most eminent counsel for the prisoner was employed, who pictured the many virtues of the accused in such glowing colors, followed by the many unendurable aggravations of the imprudent black wench, as he called her, that the ignorant and carefully selected jury rendered a verdict of acquittal without leaving their seats.

During his declining years he would frequently make the tour of the neighborhood, offering prayer with each family. On one of these occasions he chanced to call at a house where the family consisting of the parents and several half grown urchins who had never during their lives either attended a meeting or worship or witnessed religious exercises of any sort.

The vehemence and earnestness of expression, together with the numerous and strange epithets used by the old man, which at this day would be denominated as decidedly profane, filled the children with both fear and wonder, causing them to retreat to another room and firmly barricade the door where they remained until the departure of their visitor, when one by one they softly crept from their concealment and approaching their mother who sat in the corner nearly convulsed with laughter at their needless and ridiculous fright. "M-a-r-m," whispered the oldest son so soon as he could muster courage, "what made that old crazy fool get down on the floor and swear so?" Though rough and coarse in his deportment, he was beyond a doubt perfectly conscientious in all his acts, and being possessed of a strong will he sought to rule, oftimes as might be termed with a rod of iron. On a certain occasion when accused of being arrogant and harsh with his parishioners, his reply was, "Well, dear children, I can't lassy lick ye over as Brother Yates does for I am a regular burnt ground harrow." Father Yates on the other hand was always ready for an excuse for all shortcomings and always avoided all harsh and irritating language, or that calculated to wound the feelings of the most humble, speaking in a modulated tone with a voice of exquisite sweetness and pleasing.

Father Yates was a native of England and came to this country before his majority. He was used to hardship from childhood and though unlearned, having no privileges in early life, he was a man of good strong common-sense and possessed a good knowledge of human nature, and had a fair knowledge of passing events. He lived to a good old age always living near the identical spot where he felled the first tree. He reared a large family of sons and daughters, two of whom are now living, and one at the mature age of eighty-six years and still able to do a good day's work.

Lakeside.

Tuesday, July 8th, Lakeside was visited with a terrific thunder shower and lightning. They saw the shower coming, and in a very short time the Lake looked black as ink, and all of a sudden it became white, and when it struck the buildings it came with a whirlwind. It did not damage the hotel at all, but it took about half the roof of the barn completely off, which is quite a large barn. Part of the roof struck the roof of the cottage and damaged it badly. The wind sent things flying round lively for a few moments. The cook was just outside the kitchen door, had been closing the cottage windows, when the wind took her and blew her up against the side of the building and she had to hustle lively to get inside. But the whirlwind did not stop there. Along the shore it struck both boat houses completely demolishing them and laid them flat to the ground, a complete wreck. One boat house was built only two years ago, and was a substantial strong building. The loss cannot be less than fifteen hundred dollars.

The fast steamer, Aziscohos, Capt. C. H. Greenwood, had just landed some passengers at Sunday Cove, who had been on the round trip with him, had started on his home trip to Lakeside, and had got just outside of Sunday Cove when the steamer came upon him. They could not see three rods ahead of the steamer, and every thing looked white, but the staunch steamer showed her mettle, and rode the waves like a duck. The trip—a few days.

Charles H. Allen of Lowell, her engineer, stood by the throttle like a major, although he got thoroughly soaked by the spray. The flag was also striking her sounded like pistols being fired off. For about ten minutes the steamer did not seem to go ahead a foot, but just held her own. It lasted about twenty-five minutes, but the wind howled and blew furiously during that time. She finally came out of it all right not having shipped a barrel of water. He had two passengers aboard. One of them wanted the captain to steer in towards shore, which would be death to all hands, as they were full of rocks and ledges. His only salvation was to go ahead, with a good boat under him, and keep head to the seas, which he did and they all got home just the same. The people at the house were glad to see the steamer come in as they were afraid she had gone to the bottom.

HEBRON.

Tuesday's gale passed this place doing slight damages in the afternoon. Lightning struck Mrs. Geo. Cobb's barn in the evening, burning her entire set of buildings, two cows, one pig, a phaeton, wagon, sleigh, pung, carriage robe, harness, two chamber sets, three bedsteads, two beds, a large amount of bedding, one rauge. Almost the entire contents of the chambers were destroyed. Three beds were saved, the most of the dishes and silver ware, and a quantity of clothing. Many things that money cannot replace. The buildings were insured for $1000. Frank Cobb, her only son, was telegraphed and is soon expected. The goods saved were deposited in the school house until morning and moved to her nephew's, A. Tubbs'. Mrs. C. with her daughter, Mrs. Bonney, have lived alone since the death of her husband. They are now living at Elizabeth Tubbs'. Mrs. Cobb is seventy-eight and has always said she should spend the remainder of her days in her old home. The loss is keenly felt by her.

HANOVER.

The epidemic of last Tuesday night was the hardest wind that has ever blew at this place. The worst damage it did was at Mr. Smith's, the Elmwood Stock Farm. It took about 20 feet off the roof of the barn and blew four rods of the big shade trees across the road. It took five men a day to clear the road so teams could get by. One of these elm trees was four feet through and it tore it up by the roots. A lot of trees were blown down.

W. C. Holt and Walter Faulkner caught 135 nice brook trout one day recently.

Quite a number of city boarders are stopping at Hanover this summer.

MASON.

Chas. B. Hamlin and wife of Sweden visited Mrs. J. C. Bean and called on Rev. Mr. Witham and family. Mr. Witham was their former pastor and also joined them in marriage some twenty years ago. They also called out to Bethel to see Susie Stowe. Mr. Hamlin and wife worked some years at the Industrial School at Lancaster, Mass., and Miss Stow and Mrs. Bean were there at the time.

Rev. Mr. Davis and wife returned from their visit to Turner last Wednesday.

Fritz Tyler, Joseph Tyler, Alonzo Tyler and Alanson Tyler have gone to Westbrook and vicinity to work haying. They went July 3d to spend the 4th in Portland.

The M. E. Circle met with Mrs. May Bartlett and had a very pleasant season.

Some of our young people went to Albany Basins the 4th. Two young Americans dressed for the occasion made merry themselves and some sport for themselves and our townepeople while they and their dog in his regalia went from house to house having a basket of hats for sale. We called them Punch and Judy.

We think some of our people celebrated by work on the broken bridge.

Our school concert or picnic did not come off the Fourth for want of interest or attention that was necessary.

Heman Bean and wife of Mechanic Falls and Bert Bean and wife visited at J. C. Bean's the 4th.

Rev. Mr. Witham sowed peas in his garden the 14th of May and the 4th of July had peas picked from his vines for dinner. We see that some have had them earlier, but were they grown as quick. The variety was the Early Alaska.

Clara Morrill has engaged to work for Payson Grover during his company season and commenced Saturday the 5th.

The new bridge was made passable Monday night.

J. H. Bean lost a good hog that he had wintered, Sunday. It was thought it got choked.

Tuesday, the 8th, we were visited by a high wind which did much damage to trees if not to crops. It was nearly a cyclone.

The new bridge across Pleasant River was successfully put in position last Monday by F. D. and J. H. Bean. It is much stronger than the old one and is a credit to the town and builders.

Andrew Bean and John C. Stiles were in town recently fishing. They caught over ninety of the speckled beauties.

Green peas the Fourth and the same with new potatoes the 8th and plenty of strawberries for dessert.

Elmer E. Stiles has a cosset lamb that tipped the scales at 64 lbs. when twelve weeks old. Who can beat him?

Paul Laberta has slaughtered upwards of five hundred calves this season.

Several cases of influenza are reported.

Joseph O'Clare, the prophet, is at present located in Cornish.

NORTH WOODSTOCK.

In my items of last week where it said John Hemmingway's crew had cut and peeled over 15,300 cords of poplar it should have been trees instead of cords.

Last Sunday was observed as Children's Day at Milton Sabbath School and was much enjoyed. Mr. Page and wife are doing a good work and their influence is a great benefit to many.

John Harding with R. H. Sessions as help went to Rumford Falls last week and cut the hay on his farm, with the exception of the meadow. His wife did their cooking.

Elbridge Buck of Milton has been putting new sills under W. F. Harding's barn the past week.

George Brown went to Philips last week to carry home his cousin, Alice Sampson. Lucy Billings accompanied them.

A few commenced haying last week, but nearly all the farmers began this week.

Your correspondent enjoyed a nice drive to Rumford last Friday.

Joseph Ackley has bought a new Adriance mower.

N. G. Sessions health is improving somewhat.

E. C. Billings and wife visited at C. H. Sessions' last Thursday.

Ruins of the storm of Tuesday night are everywhere visible. Large pines and elms were broken off, apple trees blown over, and several small out buildings were demolished at different farms. A lot of glass was broken by flying shingles and Mr. Harlow's chimney was blown off.

We met True Childs formerly of Milton now of West Life. That locality must be favorable to him as he is looking finely. He informed us that he has 1,210 acres of grain growing on his farm this season. He went to Portland in June with two carloads of horses to sell, and is now visiting friends in Milton and Rumford.

For the Realm Beyond.

The writer, familiar with the woods and woodcraft, has hunted all animals in our northern forests from the lynx down to the rabbit and is familiar with the habits of all. Not one of them but what takes some form of bath each day. In nature, cleanliness follows the appeasing of hunger, and here humanity gets a solid lesson. Take it to heart, add Brussels soap, and thus make clearer your path to the celestial realm.

GREENWOOD.

Mr. Lapham and wife went to Milton last week to attend the funeral of his brother's wife, who died of consumption.

Oliver and Moses Swan have taken the grass to cut on Frank Hill's place near West Paris.

We understand David Corbett intends moving his house onto the Stearn's place, so called, owned by Oliver Swan.

Your correspondent was presented with a very handsome bouquet of pond lillies the other day.

GRAFTON.

Geo. Otis has a nice new buggy.

Mrs. E. I. Brown received about fifteen lbs. of trout from friends at Middle Dam. Many of the fish weighed a pound each.

School in dist. No. 2 closed last week after a term of nine weeks taught by Hattie Harris of Bethel.

The wind-blow last week did considerable damage in town. Mrs. Brown's shed came down in which was Mr. Otis' riding wagon, that was demolished; several carts and farm implements of Mrs. Brown's were injured. The old McAllister barn was blown down and one sheep killed. The shingles were blown from Mr. Otis' barn in less than a minute, and everything moved pretty freely.

Mrs. Rufus Farrar's mother is visiting her.

Mrs. J. S. Bartlett of Bethel has been visiting friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Tyler went to Newry the 4th.

E. I. Brown finishes working on the lake and carry roads this week.

A few from here attended the dance at Byron the 4th.

I. G Brown book-keeper for Bearce & Wilson of Lewiston is spending a short vacation at home.

Florence Farrar who has been attending school at Augusta the past year has returned home.

Strawberries are quite plenty. E. I. Brown has put notices that no one is allowed picking berries in his fields.

Black flies are terrible. People who have lived here for years say they can't remember when they were so thick.

Mr. and Mrs. Pratt observed the 25th anniversary of their wedding the 12th, by inviting their friends to spend the afternoon and evening with them. They all enjoyed a pleasant time and partook of a bountiful supper. Mr. and Mrs. P. received several good and useful presents among which was a silver castor, a half doz. tea spoons, fine dessert and table spoons, silver pie knife and a willow rocker.

EAST OTISFIELD.

Some of Mrs. S. P. Morton's summer boarders have arrived on Locust Hill.

A very pleasant family reunion was held at Broad View farm on the Fourth of July. Children and grandchildren of Mrs. E. S. Greenleaf to the number of twenty-five gathered at the old homestead where the day was passed in social intercourse and games. Dinner was served on the lawn where a large canvas tent was spread. A very nice willow chair was presented to Mrs. G. from her children. The day's enjoyment was closed with a display of fireworks in the evening.

Cyrus Knight saw a deer near his house a few days since.

William Lamb had a very ill turn last week, but is somewhat improved now.

Mrs. Robert H. Union of Marblehead, Mass., is spending a few weeks at her brother's, P. C. Greenleaf.

Fernald Keene has recently lost a cow and yearling steer.

A successful term of school closed in the Wardwell district last week, taught by Winnie Bean, also in the Holdenville district by Nellie Kemp.

Nelson Thurlow is putting a cupola on his barn.

How Much Thompson's Pond Has Been Raised.

Considerable discussion has been going on of late in regard to the number of inches Thompson's pond has been raised above the original high water mark.

In a recent number of the ADVERTISER Mark Tapley claimed to have furnished the key whereby those interested may know the exact number of inches the pond has been raised above the old original high water mark. The peculiar shaped boulder mentioned by Mr. T. has very recently been visited and found to be two feet under water, thereby giving evidence that the pond is now three feet above high water mark and is much lower than it was a few weeks since when the Canada hill road was one foot under water and is now high and dry. We understand the facts correctly the Robinson Mfg. Co's. rights allow them to raise the water only two feet above high water mark.

Dyspepsia
Makes the lives of many people miserable, causing distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, a ill irregularity of the bowels. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet efficiently. It tones the stomach, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, banishes headache, and refreshes the mind.

Distress After Eating
Sick Headache
Heart-burn
Sour Stomach

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. After eating I would have a faint or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble was aggravated by my business, painting. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, which did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." GEORGE A. VACATIONS
Are Now the Order.
The time to secure the biggist bargains is when everybody has done buying; that is in the seasons between seasons. Now, for instance, the spring trade leaves us with plenty of odd lengths in CARPETS that we shall clear at a marked down price; take off at least ten and often twenty cents a yard to see the last of a pattern out of the door.

You Can Buy Carpets Cheap Now.
The season is practically over for Refrigerators. We have quite a few left this year. Ice is high, the season so far has been cool; but now the heat is here and you can get a splendid trade in a REFRIGERATOR.

The Baldwin or New Perfection are the best. We make a rule never to carry over Refrigerators. Make us an offer. We will sell at your own price if it is anywhere near cost.

BABY CARRIAGES
will be treated the same; sold at any price.

Chamber Sets!
FINE OAK SETS
That will last a lifetime, in the latest designs, and the best variety in the State.
ASH CHAMBER SETS
At Bargains! A few Sample Sets to close—only one of a kind; price cut very low; a splendid chance.
IN PARLOR SUITS
You can't do better, if you want one, than to see our $45 Crushed Plush Suit; it is really as good as many stores sell for $60. In fact, that is about as cheap as they can afford to sell them, for they pay more than we do. They buy five sets where we buy fifty or sixty. Nothing like having a variety to select from; nothing like having the latest to select from; nothing like buying where you get the most value for your money; nothing like dealing where you get the best terms, if you need it, or the biggist discount for cash.
We keep everything that is used in House Furnishings, and shall be glad to have your trade for little or big orders.
Come and see us or write for information. If you live out of town, we pay freight on your goods.

We extend thanks to Congressman Dingley for a copy of the 10th Census Agricultural Statistics and Special Reports. The book is full of useful information and cannot fail to be of value to the possesser.

We have received a copy of the Seventh Annual Report of the United States Geological Survey 1885-6 through the kindness of Senator Frye. It is needless to add that we can't pronounce all the jaw breaking words contained in the book but we can understand the pictures and enjoy looking at them.

LOVELL.

On Thursday last Don, the youngest son of Mellen Eastman, was kicked in the face by a young colt. Quite a bad gash was cut and his face was bruised and blackened, one eye being closed for a while. A physician was called, ether adminitered, a few stitches taken and he is now doing well and will come out all right.

M. K. Bemis tells us that the memory of man runneth not to the time when so many people enjoyed themselves as well as they did at the American House at the dance on July 4th. Seventy couples were on the floor. Every one was polite and civil. No breath was perfumed by anything stronger than the wholesome peppermint, and no nose lighted by anything more fiery than the festive peanut. There was neither "rum, riot or rebellion" in the air.

J. W. Whitlock, wife and children from Brooklyn are visiting the family of J. W. Farrington.

C. W. Foster and family are visiting at Mrs. Caroline Keniston's at No. 4.

District Deputy Grand Master Stephen F. Kimball installed the officers of Crescent Lodge, No. 25, I. O. G. T., at North Lovell Friday night. The election of officers are as follows: N. G., S. F. McKeen; V. G., W. W. Durgin; R. S., E. O. Gammon; P. S., W. C. Brooks; T., J. F. Farnham.

GILEAD.

Remember the K. of P. excursion to Portland and the Island Saturday. July 26. See posters.

Edwin Elliott passed away the 10th. It was supposed he took laudinum as he has been in very poor spirits since last spring, at which time he broke up with his family, owing to a difficulty existing between himself and wife, causing a separation. Mr. Elliott came from Lincoln, Vt., and was employed as an engineer by J. W. Bennett. He had many friends, who are sorry to know of his trouble and untimely death. Mr. Bennett suspended operations at the mill till after the funeral service.

Mrs. Geo. Leighton is in very poor health this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Fogg is with us again.

Pretty warm weather and farmers have just begun haying.

D. O. Bennett's family and Allie Bennett are on the sick list.

RUMFORD.

A boat containing Adams Bartlett, Frank Abbott, Ville Thompson and Lou Cole of Providence, R. I., was upset in the river Saturday afternoon. As they were near the shore they escaped with a thorough wetting.

Mattie and Georgia Webber of Waltham, Mass., are visiting at their grandfather's, Elias Barker's.

Strawberry parties are the rage at present in this vicinity.

A party of twenty went to Mt. Zircon Friday.

NORTH WATERFORD.

Tuesday, the 8th, ladies' circle met with Mrs. Chesley Fernald of Albany. Notwithstanding it was the hottest day of the season a goodly number was present, about 50 in all. Each one on arriving was treated to a dish of ice cream, which was very refreshing after the ride of five miles in the heat of the day. About six o'clock there was a fine shower which cooled the air and laid the dust. After all had partaken of the picnic supper they started for their homes in good spirits.

Children's day was observed here last Sunday. The church was prettily decorated and the exercises were very interesting, and pleasing to the older ones as well as the children. Much credit is due to our pastor, Mr. Livingston, for his kindly aid in arranging the order; also to the Saunders brothers for the sweet music they rendered, as well as others that kindly served. It was a perfect success.

The officers elect of Evergreen Lodge, D. of R. No. 15, were duly installed in their respective chairs Saturday evening, July 12, by the grand officers of Bridgton. Their wives came with them, also others to the number of fifteen. After the installation, speeches were made by the officers, which were appropriate as well as instructive. There were remarks made by members of Evergreen Lodge. After the close there was a liberal collation of cake and ice cream, which was very acceptable and much enjoyed by all. The company dispersed in good time, expressing their feelings which were, they were glad to be present.

Mrs. Alice McIntire and sister, Mrs. Edith McIntire, have been visiting the past week their relatives at Hartford and Turner.

NORTH PARIS.

A very successful term of school closed Friday, the 11th, in the Tuell district, taught by Addie L. Bonny.

A very heavy shower of wind and rain passed over here Tuesday, the 8th. An apple tree near the house of Chas. Chase was partly demolished, and crops were laid flat to the ground in some places.

Adelbert Littlehale has bought a fine horse.

Mabel Cushman has gone to Old Orchard to work in a boarding house.

Mrs. Kingsbury Curtis is not expected to live but a short time. She has had a paralytic shock.

EAST STONEHAM.

There was no serious damage done by the high wind and shower of the 8th, but the wind was the strongest ever visiting this place in the summer. It must have injured fruit trees considerably, as I have seen setions which were grafted last year in some trees in this vicinity which were torn out by the wind and scattered over the ground.

Mrs. Sarah Brown is very sick and her sister, Mrs. Bicknell, has come to take care of her.

Farmers are getting in their hay in a lively manner.

C. F. Moody's new barn is shingled and he is storing his hay in it.

Elden Stevens and family returned here from Damariscotta a few days since.

Frederick Evans met with quite a loss last week. His mare Nellie was gored by a bull in the pasture so badly that it was necessary to dispatch her and end her misery. She was heavy with foal. It was a great loss to a poor man as Mr. Evans is.

School in district No. 1 closed last week, taught by Luella Howe. During the 10 weeks' session Rose A. Goodwin, Lemuel Goodwin and Greenlief Goodwin, children of Supervisor Wm. Goodwin, have not lost one-half day. This is very steady attendance for young pupils. Many of the scholars in this district are very irregular in their attendance at school and a teacher cannot teach them if they are not there, however learned or willing the teacher may be.

GREENWOOD.

School closed in dist. No. 1, July 2nd, after a very profitable term of eight weeks taught by Ella Lafarier of Norway. Number of scholars, 13; average attendance 12½. The following were not absent during the term: Alice and Mabel Emmons, Fred Davis, Mabel Morgan. None of the scholars were tardy during the term. Cyrus and Maud Emmons were absent only one half day.

Every town where SAVENA is introduced the sale is larger than all other washing compounds

Jarvis C. Carter of Brooklyn, N. Y., arrived Monday on his annual vacation in Paris.

Mrs. Ware of Canton is visiting her brother Col. De S. Austin.

BROWNFIELD.

The scholars of the grammar school gave a very pleasing entertainment Friday evening, at Town hall. Miss Allard the teacher, worked hard to drill the scholars for their parts and she has the appreciation of all the district as the proceeds go to buy a flag for the school house. Over $20 was taken at the door.

John McDonal has bought a mowing machine.

Phil Boynton and Byron Bradeen are home from North Conway, where they are at work.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Ingalls of Denmark were in town last week.

Col. H. R. Millett of Gorham was here Monday, to adjust a fire loss.

Mrs. David Perkins has gone to Eaton, N. H., on a visit to her sister.

Mrs. William Swan goes to Boston for the summer this week.

UPTON.

People began haying July 15.

School in districts No. 1 and 3 closed July 11. Etta P. Bradeen taught in dist. No. 1 and taught No. 3 school too. She kept perfect order and her scholars advanced in their studies finely.

We are all delighted to see the smiling face of Mary Abbott once more at home. She brought with her a friend Miss Wilson from Somerville Mass. Miss Abbott's motto we believe, is this, "Kindness makes friends."

D. C. Brooks seems more comfortable.

O. H. Abbott is very feeble.

We see our old townsman Mr. Whitney in town occasionally.

Mrs. Roxanna Godwin and son Carlos of Bethel have been in town visiting Mrs. Ida Frost and other friends.

Mrs. E. F. West and Mrs. A. K. Frost attended the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Sewall Pratt, at Grafton the 12th. A very pleasant afternoon was enjoyed and a bountiful repast.

BOLSTER'S MILLS.

Mrs. Hattie Mains is having her house painted. Mr. Miller is doing the work.

Charles Harlow has had the exterior of his residence painted and the tasty manner in which the interior has been remodeled and fitted up makes it a most desirable little home. Mrs. Harlow has recently visited her daughters at Portland.

James Packard of the Pike Hill neighborhood has sold his farm to Mrs. Abbott of Upton for $1800. Mr. P. has his eye on two farms to buy, J. P. Shedd's and the James Bennett farm.

The steamer Pennesseewassee looks quite majestic sailing up the lake. On Sunday morning a dozen of our citizens gathered at the lake shore to take a passage to Gibson's grove as Capt. Ames had given out word that he should touch at our village in his regular trips. All the waving of handkerchiefs's availed not for we watched her pass by on the other side and therefore we did not ride in the Pennesseewassee on her maiden day. We would suggest that a red flag be displayed from here when passengers are in waiting.

NORTH NEWRY.

Several of the neighbors were invited to the house of Mrs. T. S. Littlehale a few evenings ago and quite a pretty sight met our eyes. It was the opening of a night blooming cereus. There were five buds unfolded on one leaf, the beauty and fragrance of which can better be imagined than described.

C. H. Stearns and daughter, S. R. Widber, Thomas Powers, Dennis Kilgore and wife, Charlie Stearns and several others from this neighborhood visited Portland the 4th.

Chas. H. Farnum is at Paris haying.

ROXBURY.

On Tuesday, the 8th inst., this section of the country experienced the worst cyclone that it ever knew. It struck L. A. Thomas' barn and blew the roof to pieces and then it fell through shattering the timbers and blowing the large doors and windows to splinters. It next struck John Reed's barn and felled them both flat to the ground killing three sheep and destroying the most of his farming tools. It next took P. T. Bradeen's shed and blew it a short distance and then it fell to pieces. Large numbers of apple and forest trees were uprooted and blown down.

Mrs. F. R. Reed and son of Auburn are visiting Mr. Reed's mother.

WEST PARIS.

The weather is fine and the farmers are now improving their time in harvesting their hay. Help is quite scarce at present.

The West Paris Mfg. Co. have dispensed with some of their help for a short time but it is expected they will soon call them back again.

The Pioneer Chair Factory are doing an increase business. They have all they can do. L. B. Andrews has been at Old Orchard for a week on a vacation. He returned on Monday feeling nicely and said he never enjoyed himself any better. He gained some six pounds, which shows he must have enjoyed his vacation. D. E. Cornish took his place while he was absent. Mr. Cornish says he likes West Paris very much and can't see why any one could not.

Mrs. N. G. Hollis is very slim. She has been sick some five or six weeks; don't seem to gain very fast. She started for Canton Tuesday.

Bartlett the jeweler has been here for a week.

A. K. Dimock, jr., returned from New York a week ago with his bride. He is the designer for the Pioneer Chair Co.

Nothing Else equals Ayer's Pills for stimulating a torpid liver, strengthening digestion, and regulating the action of the bowels. They contain no calomel, nor any other injurious drug, but are composed of the active principles of the best vegetable cathartics.

"I was a sufferer for years from dyspepsia and liver troubles, and found no permanent relief until I commenced taking Ayer's Pills. They have effected a complete cure."—George Mooney, Walla Walla, W. T.

"Whenever I am troubled with constipation, or suffer from loss of appetite, Ayer's Pills set me right again."—A. J. Kiser, Jr., Rock House, Va.

"For the cure of headache, Ayer's Cathartic Pills are the most effective medicine I ever used."—R. K. James, Dorchester, Mass.

"Two boxes of Ayer's Pills cured me of severe headache, from which I was long a sufferer."—Emma Keyes, Hubbardston, Conn.

Ayer's Pills, PREPARED BY DR. J. C. AYER & CO., Lowell, Mass. Sold by all Dealers in Medicines.

This is an Exact Representation OF THE Leavitt Pat. Boiler Handle.

Everybody can see the advantages of it at a glance.

It will not cut the hands! It will not burn the hands! It will not come off!

If it does I will put on new ones free. They are on all the boilers I sell, and I am selling lots of them. They will cost you no more than it will to buy the old kind that cut awfully every time you lift the boiler. Call and see it.
